Scalloned Lobster. Pick out all the mest from one large or two aiddling-sized lobsters and chop it all quite fine with a little pepper, salt, cayenne and a spoonful or more of white sauce or thin melted butter sufficient to moisten it : spitt the empty shells of the talls and bodies and BU each of them neatly with the chopped lobster; cover them with grated bread and put them into an oven; serve on a folded napkin with fried paraley; six or seven divided shells will be sufficient for a dish.

A Pocket Nicht. Lanny.

To instantly obtain a light sufficient to read the time by a watch or clock by night, without danger of setting things on fire, is an easy matter. Take an oblong vial of the clearest of glass, put into it a piece of phosphorous about the lize of a pea, pour upon this some pure olive oil, heated to the boiling point; bottle is to be filled about one-third full, then cork tightly. To use the light, remove the cork, allow the air to enter, then re-cork. The whole empty space in the bottle will then become luminous, and the light obtained will be a good one. As soon as the light becomes dim its power can be increased by opening the bottle and allowing a fresh supply of air to enter.

In very cold weather it is sometimes ccessary to heat the vial between the hands to increase the fluidity of the oil. watchmen in Paris in all the magazines where explosives or inflammable

Some wise women are having box lounges made for them by carpenters under their supervision. They are the shape of a Turkish couch in all respects, except that they have no curving "arm" at either end. This deficiency is supplied by a pile of cushions. The top is raised by hinges and is covered with a mattress and with chints which fales in a valance around the sides. This forms a comfortable resting place and also the very thing to hold in its recesses madame's best gowns, which can be spread out to their full length without fear of rumpling or crushing them.
